

Things To Know About Renting and Purchasing
Cider Mill Strings
Mr. Ken Hayashi and Mrs. Emily Franz

As students grow, they may require a different size instrument. All rental companies will switch the size of the instrument free of charge, as the student grows.

Some companies offer a “rent-to-own” policy, where a portion of your rental fee is applied toward the purchase of a full-size instrument when the child is ready.

Some rental companies will visit the school to make deliveries and pick up instruments for repairs if needed.

Some rental companies offer insurance policies in the event a repair is needed.

Sometimes when it comes to purchasing stringed instruments, the old saying, “you get what you pay for” may apply. Some instruments are available at a fantastic price; however, upon arrival they may need extensive set-up and repair in order to make them playable. The quality of an instrument can greatly affect the learning experience of the student.